HBA Receives Awards for Community Involvement Projects, Parade of Homes Publication

Raleigh, N.C. –The Home Builders Association of Raleigh – Wake County (HBA) received three awards - Best Parade of Homes Publication, Best Community Project and Best Special Event - during the Sept. 14 STARS Awards Gala hosted by the North Carolina Home Builders Association.

“When you accomplish such an involved project, it’s great to be recognized,” said Tim Minton, the executive vice president of the HBA. “This year, our association completed two very notable community involvement projects. These awards recognize the extent of our membership’s dedication to make each of these a success.”

The STARS Awards program, a centerpiece of the 21st Century Building Expo and Conference, honors the achievements of builders, associates, realtors, media and advertising professionals, and many others who make major contributions to the residential home building industry. Local home builders associations are also honored for their outstanding achievements. The expo, held annually in Charlotte, is the premier building expo and conference in the southeast.

The best special event award was for Operation: Coming Home II’s Hero Home Finale Event, and the best community project award was for NBC’s George to the Rescue Renovation by the Remodelers Council of the HBA. The best Parade of Homes publication award was for the 2010 parade tour book.
