

The owners bought this house to be closer to family and enjoy the surrounding farmland. The house had been empty for years, so they decided to breathe some life into the contemporary home with a whole house remodel. After a year's worth of planning with Bizios Architects, they were ready to get started. Every square inch of this home has been remodeled and upgraded. As you make your way up the drive, the Porte Cochere, steel beams and Trespa siding make for a grand entrance. The exposed steel columns add to the striking, contemporary style. With some help from one of our interior designers, Leslie Cohen, they chose every material and finish. The owners were meticulous in their design decisions and their attention to detail can be seen everywhere in the remodel.
